

Marasmius species (Tricholomataceae) found in man-influenced habitats in the vicinity of Yaoundé, Cameroon

DOMINIQUE C. MOSSEBO¹ AND VLADIMÍR ANTONÍN^{2*}

¹University of Yaoundé I, Mycological Laboratory, B.P. 1456, Yaoundé, Cameroon

mossebo@uycdc.uninet.cm

²Moravian Museum, Dept. of Botany, Zelný trh 6, CZ-659 37 Brno, Czech Republic

vantonin@mzm.cz *corresponding author

Mossebo D.C. and Antonín V. (2004): Marasmius species (Tricholomataceae) found in man-influenced habitats in the vicinity of Yaoundé, Cameroon. – Czech Mycol. 56: 85-111

The authors describe collections of 13 taxa of Marasmius species made in the vicinity of the Cameroon capital, Yaoundé, in stands under the influence of man. One of them, Marasmius luteostipitatus, is described as a new species of sect. Sicci.

Key words: Marasmius, M. luteostipitatus, Tricholomataceae, Cameroon, Africa, new species.